About the building

Hatton Garden gives 31-32, Ely Place its clearest sense of place, placing your business beside one of London's best-known jewellery and diamond trading districts. Ely Place also carries its own historic identity through St Etheldreda's Church, a notable heritage landmark on the street itself. Together, they position you on the Clerkenwell, Smithfield and Holborn edge, in an area shaped by specialist commerce, long-established institutions and the legal quarter nearby. For day-to-day access, you'll have Farringdon station close by for National Rail, the Elizabeth line and Underground connections, with Chancery Lane Underground station adding Central line links into the wider city. The surrounding area also brings practical and civic anchors including the Central Criminal Court at the Old Bailey, St Bartholomew's Hospital and the Hatton Garden Post Office. Gray's Inn Gardens offers nearby open space, while Smithfield Market, the Museum of the Order of St John and City, University of London add further commercial, cultural and academic presence.
